PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS AT ANNAPOLIS

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF THE NAVAL ACADEMY

The First Essential of Peace and Security Is An Adequate Defense Which Should Be Broadly Extended and Borne By All Our People.

Reduction of the nation's standing military forces to a minimum is predicated upon attention to military affairs by the average citizen. President Coolidge declared at Annapolis Wednesday before the graduating class of the naval academy.

While appointing the new officers as ambassadors of peace and citizenship, the president reminded them that the first essential of peace and security is an adequate defense, which "should be broadly extended and borne by all our people."

"We do not believe in or wish to bear the expense to maintain large standing military forces," he said. "The very genius of a republic would be threatened by that policy. But while military science has advanced to such a degree that it is necessary constantly to maintain a considerable body of trained experts in that profession, the true spirit of American institutions requires that each citizen should be potentially a soldier, ready to take his place in the ranks in time of peril, either in the field or in the necessary productive activity."

"It is exactly because we wish to be on our standing forces small that the average citizen must give some attention to other government affairs, in order that he may express a deliberate and informed judgment at the ballot box."

The president reiterated that America's aim was "a policy of peace thru reason rather than force," and declared that in its dealings with the peoples of this and other nations, the navy must remember that the "dominant traits of mankind are truth and justice and righteousness and that the appeal must ultimately prevail."

"The ultimately I believe peace will prevail," he continued. "I have too much knowledge of the history of mankind and too much experience with the traits of human nature to dare to assert that we shall never again be engaged in war. It is known of all the world that we have no present or traditional enemies, that we covet no territory, harbor no imperialistic designs and are not arming ourselves with the expectation of attacking or being attacked. And so far as we can look into the future, so far as we can gauge the power and temper of other peoples, there never was a time when it was less likely that any other nation or combination of nations would or could make any attack on us."

"As one who is responsible not only for our national defense, but likewise our friendly relations with other peoples and our title to the good opinion of the world, I feel that the occasion will very seldom arise, and I know it does not now exist, when those connected with our navy are justified either directly or by inference in asserting that other specified powers are arming against us, and by arousing national suspicion and hatred attempting to cause us to arm against them."

"The suggestion that any other people are harboring a hostile intent toward us is a very serious charge to make. We would not relish having our honorable motives and peaceful intentions questioned; others can not relish having any of us question theirs. We should not forget that in the world over the general attitude and one of the strongest attributes of all peoples is a desire to do right."

As in instrument of peace, Mr. Coolidge gave assurance that the navy would draw adequate support from the federal treasury and he gave support also to voluntary organizations which attempted to advance the welfare of the navy by keeping the public informed "of its true aims and purposes." A strong military establishment alone he said, would not prevent anyone from ever attempting to molest the nation.

"I know of no nation in history that that has ever been able to attain that position," he said. "I see no reason to expect that we could be the exception. Altho I believe thoroly in adequate military preparations, what I am trying to argue is that they are not sufficient unto themselves."

"If we are to promote peace on earth we must have a great deal more than the power of the sword. We must call into action the spiritual and moral forces of mankind."

HITLER-LUDWIG CEMETERY CHAPEL

Contract Let To T. M. Barnes of Circleville.

The Hitler-Ludwig cemetery association let the contract for the construction of the Nelson Hitler Memorial Chapel at the cemetery in Pickaway township to Contractor T. M. Barnes of Circleville.

The chapel will be constructed of brick with hard-wood finish, dimensions 50x38 feet, will be built in the northwest corner of the grounds and will have a seating capacity for one hundred. Stribling & Lum, Columbus, made the plans, the style of architecture is old Colonial.

A bronze tablet bearing the following: "Memorial to Nelson Hitler" 1925, will be placed on the Chapel.

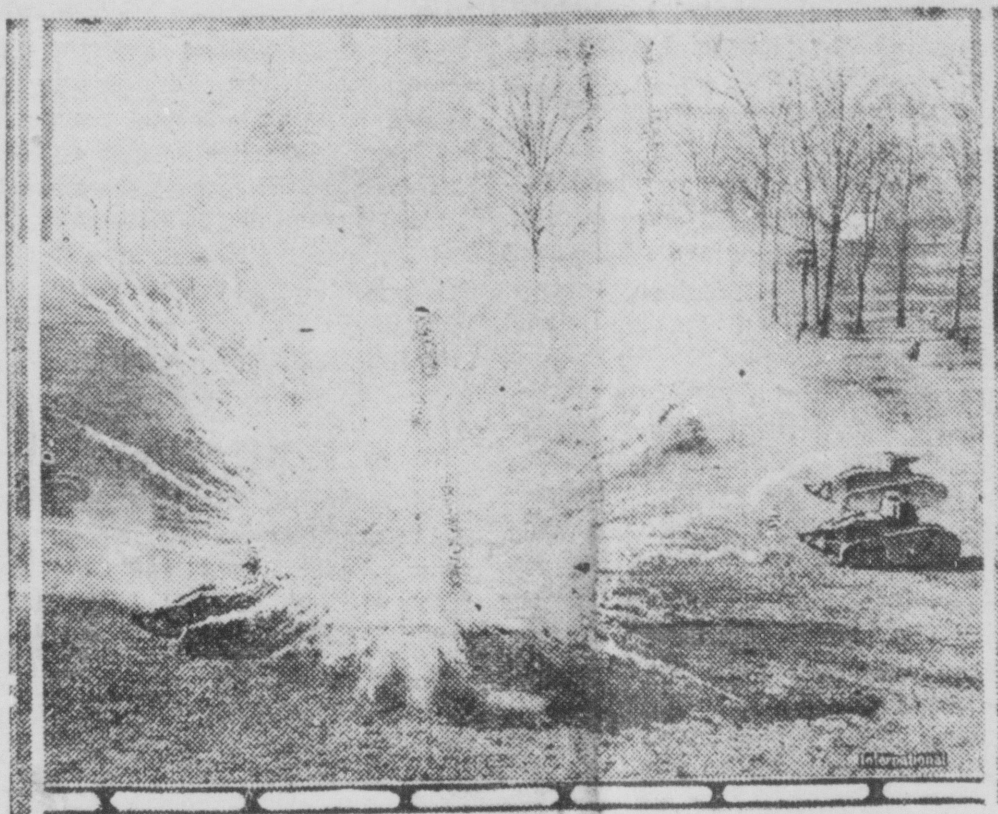

BLACK EYES ON BEACH

Bathing girls with black eyes are many on the beaches in the vicinity of Los Angeles and Hollywood and the men have nothing to do with it. Burnt cork has been used for years by ball players to keep the sun's glare from the eyes, and it's practical for the beaches as the fashion proves. Photograph is of Clara Horton, film star, whose makeup box is not complete without the cork.

Bucyrus, O., June 3—State Senator James R. Hopley has married Mrs. Pearl Gertrude Sutton, of Findlay, it became known today. Hopley is a Republican and has served three terms in the Ohio senate. He was brought into the public eye during the last legislative session by sponsoring a resolution resigned to oust "red" professors from state colleges and universities. The proposal was shelved.

Tanks Show What They Can Do

A demonstration of modern tank tactics, with Capt. C. A. Osborne, commanding the First division tank company, in charge, was held at Miller field, Staten Island. The demonstration was to prove the usefulness of tanks against land mines, phosphorus grenades and air bombs. This remarkable photograph was taken at the very moment that a bomb exploded.

CROP OF PEAS DECIMATED BY HOT WEATHER

Report From Over the State Shows That Pea Crop is Fifty Per Cent Short.

Columbus, O., June 4 (UP).—The pea crop in Ohio this year will not be more than 50 per cent of normal according to the latest estimates received by the Ohio Canners' association. This is due to the frost a couple weeks ago and the present lack of moisture. It is reported that the rainfall is from four to six inches below normal. Among the principal pea producing counties in Ohio are Mercer, Logan, Champaign, Ross, Pickaway and a yette.

The outlook for tomatoes also is very discouraging, canners report. The growers have had but little success in obtaining plants to take the place of those killed by the frosts. It is believed that if new plants can be obtained and set out by June 15, a fair crop can be produced, but it would be subject to the dangers of frost in the early fall. It is believed that the price of both peas and tomatoes will be high this year.

HONORING

The Girls of the Class of 1925, C. H. S.

The Business and Professional Women's Club have issued invitations to a dinner in honor of the girls of the class of 1925 C. H. S., at St. Philip's Parish House, on Wednesday evening, June 10th, at 5:30 o'clock.

The club flatters itself upon its success in securing a speaker for this occasion, Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, who will bring a message to the girls and deliver it in a way that should make a lasting impression upon the minds of these younger folks.

BIG FIRE LOSS.

Mechanicsburg, O., June 4—Damage of between $25,000 and $30,000 was caused by the blaze here last night which swept the business district, it was estimated today. The fire started in a trash pile and ate its way thru a warehouse owned by F. P. Boggs, hardware dealer, a garage, three barns and a number of outlying buildings.

DAHL-CAMPBELL EXCURSIONISTS GO TO CHICAGO

Many from Pickaway county are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Monday of next week when they will start their annual vacation as the guests of The Dahl-Campbell company for a very enjoyable lake trip to Chicago and return, arriving home Saturday night, June 13.

The party of around 1,000 guests will go by special trains to Windsor, Canada, where, late Monday afternoon they will board the giant lake steamer, "Neronic" for an 1800 mile cruise to Chicago and return, spending two days in Chicago where sightseeing trips will be made thruout the city.

W. M. Campbell, president of The Midland Grocery company, will have personal charge of the outing party and the plans made for entertainment while on the outing are most elaborate.

While most of the retailers and others in the party made reservations months ago, a few who are booking late also are being given comfortable quarters aboard the big boat.

Last year Pickaway countians were with the party on a trip to Atlantic City.

A convention feature aboard the boat promises to be of much value to retailers who make up the large party of vacationists. Pickaway county residents who are members of the party will join one of the specials at Columbus and Washington, C. H.

The outing this year is said to be equal and in some respects superior to any of the previous outings.

Mrs. Willis Olney and Miss Nellie Rife spent the day in Columbus.

EIGHT LIVES SNUFFED OUT CRAZED FATHER MURDERS

His Mother, Brother-in-Law Sister and Their Five Children—Believe Slayer Was a Victim of the Heat, He Tried to Take His Own Life.

Crazed by the heat and financial reverses Floyd Russell 42, of Hamilton, today shot and killed eight relatives. He then turned the gun on himself sending a bullet thru his chest. Physicians say he will recover.

The murder orgy took place at Russell's home. His victims were his own mother, his sister and brother-in-law and their five children ranging in age from four months to ten years.

"The mortgage was due. I couldn't meet it. I wanted to go and take them all with me so they wouldn't worry," Russell said at the jail. "It was so hot I couldn't think."

When police arrived at the house in response to calls sent in by neighbors they found Russell weaving about the living room.

"Wait, I want to shoot my picture off the wall," he told police.

The bodies of Russell's victims were strewn thruout the house. Dorothy Lowell, 8, was the only member of the family to escape with her life. She fled to the house of a neighbor at the first shot.

The location of the bodies indicated the family had fled before Russell's wrath. The shooting started at about 8:30 a. m. Mrs. Russell, killed as she slept, apparently was the first victim. Russell then ran thru the other rooms of the house firing two pistols. The report of the first shot awakened little Dorothy and she fled into the yard screaming.

At least fifty shots had been fired before police arrived. The bodies of some of the little children were literally riddled with bullets. Robert, 8, was shot five times thru the head and body.

According to the story of the shooting as pieced together by police Russell worked his way thru the house almost methodically. The first bullet which killed his mother as she slept awakened the entire house. The three months' old baby was frightened and cried. The other children fled, trying to hide. The crying of the infant annoyed Russell. He went to the cradle and placed a pistol against the baby's head firing three times.

Then a sound attracted his attention. He whirled around in time to see Robert 3, trying to creep from the room unnoticed. Five shots ended his flight abruptly.

Paul Louis, 3, had run to his grandmother. Five shots pierced his tiny body as he pulled at her hand attempting to awaken her.

Then dashing into an adjoining room Russell found his brother sitting erect in bed. The position of the body indicated this. The mad man pumped ten shots into him. Two other bullets were for the slayer's sister-in-law. Neither was given a chance to get out of bed.

There were three girls left. Russell reloaded his weapons and crept down stairs. Two of the girls, Julia and Grace, were struggling to open the kitchen door. It stuck. As the girls covered against the door screaming Russell shot them both between the eyes and then emptied the pistols into their bodies.

After that the slayer sited little Dorothy running across the lawn toward a neighbor's house. As he fired at her Dorothy fell, but she had only fainted, believing his bullet had struck its mark, however, Russell turned back into the house. As police arrived, battering down the door, Russell turned a pistol on himself.

"Well, I didn't do such a good job on myself," he remarked looking dazed at his chest wound.

THE ANNUAL STATE BANKERS' ASSOCEATION

Columbus, O., June 4 (UP).—Co-operative marketing and international relations were the foremost topics to be discussed at the second session of the Ohio Bankers' association annual convention in Columbus today.

A golf tournament was scheduled for this afternoon.

B. G. Huntington, Columbus, president, told the assembly in his opening address that the association had reached an unusual strength within the last year. Out of a total of 1310 banks in the state only 46 failed during the year to pay their dues to the association, he said.

During the year there were two burglaries, six hold-ups and one successful attempt at a hold-up of Ohio banks, Huntington said. There were 23 men implicated and 22 of them have been arrested of which nineteen were convicted, one was killed and the case of one still is pending.

To-do—Willis-Overland directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on preferred stock at their meeting today. The dividend is payable on July 1, to stockholders as of January 20.

JEWELER SAVES $100,000 IN GEMS BY FOOT WORK

Defies Revolvers and Beats Heels Against Door Until Aid Comes.

New York.—The frantic tattoo which Abraham Podolsky beat with head and feet against the front door of his jewelry store at 74 Forsyth street frightened away two holdup men who had entered the place with drawn revolvers a few minutes before, intent on looting his safe of more than $100,000 of diamonds.

Podolsky's terrified face framed in the glass panel of the door and the robbers fled. One of the pair leaped to the running board of a passing taxicab and at the point of his revolver forced the driver to take him to Chrystie and Canal streets. The other ran north on Forsyth street to Grand street and lost himself among the Sunday promenaders.

Driver Returns to Scene.
Harry Bender of 1536 St. John's place was the driver of the taxicab. As soon as the bandit jumped from the cab he drove back to Podolsky's store with the two passengers he had in the cab. Then the party, including Louis Stein of 1679 Fifth street,

Yelling for the Police

Brooklyn, a customer, who was in the store at the time, went to the Clinton street station and reported to Detectives Whalen and Cavanaugh.

Podolsky said he was alone in the store when a tall, dark youth entered and asked to see some diamond rings, ranging in price from $200 to $250. Something in the youth's manner made Podolsky suspicious. Before going to the big safe at the rear, which stood open, he went to the front door and locked it.

Customer Arrives in Time.
Then he brought out some rings, but while the pseudo customer examined them Stein appeared at the locked door and Podolsky went to let him in.

Another youth crowded in on Stein's heels, and as soon as he was in both he and the first youth drew revolvers and ordered the jeweler and Stein into a rear room. Stein prepared to obey, but Podolsky, shouting that he would die rather than let the robbers make off with his goods, ran to the door, beat his head against it and kicked it, yelling for the police.

The men took flight and fled.

Mother Wants Two Sons Confined in Jail for Life

Philadelphia.—A seventy-year-old mother appeared in a police station here with the request that the magistrate sentence her two sons to jail, "even for life," if necessary, to "just keep them away from me."

The sons, the aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Friel, said, would not work and made themselves a nuisance about her boarding house. They had been arrested 12 times for intoxication and disorderly conduct, the police said.

"When I wouldn't give them money to buy drinks," Mrs. Friel declared, "they threatened to kill me. I'm through with them. I disown them here and now, and I don't care where you send them, or how long you give them. I don't want ever to see them again, not even when I'm dying."

The sons, Daniel, forty, and James, thirty-eight, were sentenced to three months in the county jail.

May Keep Ring

San Francisco.—An engagement ring is a gift and not a trust, and if the recipient retains it she is not guilty of embezzlement, it was ruled here by a police judge. Louis H. Peterson asked for the arrest of his former fiancée, Miss Dorothy Howard, on a charge of embezzlement, asserting she had retained a diamond ring he had given her when Miss Howard promised to become his bride. He said they subsequently abandoned their plans and she refused to return the ring.

Drowns in Tub

Hammond, Ind.—The twenty-months-old son of Mrs. Ernest Parkas was drowned recently when it fell in the bathtub during the absence of the mother, who had gone to a near-by grocery store. Mrs. Parkas had left the child in the house alone, and it climbed into the tub of water.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. DON'T BE SORRY DO NOT TARE UP CORN FIELDS IS

Advice of the Extension
Specialists Say it is to Late
to Plant Corn.

Shall I rip up that corn field and plant it over, or will it be better to let it grow and take my chances on what I get?

This is the question that is being feverishly asked by farmers where the recent freeze did severe damage to corn and farm crops extension specialists at Ohio State university are now prepared to say this: If you are reasonably sure that 75 per cent of the sprouts are still alive let them grow by all means.

In explaining the department's stand on this decision Wallace E. Hanger, one of the specialists, says there are two important reasons why corn should not be planted over at this time.

"In the first place," says Mr. Hanger, "good seed corn was scarce before the first planting and it is only reasonable to suppose that there is even less now. Telegrams from Indiana requesting seed corn indicate that sections farther west were also hard hit by the freeze and that they are also thinking of planting many fields over again."

"Sections of Ohio which suffered most are in the north and west. This is also the section of the shortest growing season and if corn is now replanted the chances are that it will not reach maturity before killing frosts this fall."

"It cannot be doubted that corn received a serious setback through the state and that in the northwest some fields are almost a total loss."

Fortoria, June 4—It's an ill wind, etc. The breeze came floating past Joe Mangette, shoe store clerk, and lo! it was laden with $10 bills. He began picking them out of the air when a woman rushed up and claimed ownership. The real owner, however, followed shortly and Mangette and she had to chase the first woman to recover some of the bills.

Cincinnati—Under the new ordinance approved by the committee of council, street care fare will be 8 1/3 cents. If tickets are bought, or 9 cents cash. It was asserted the measure would have sufficient backing to pass over an anticipated veto by Mayor George P. Carroll.

Cleveland, June 4—Sixteen persons in Ohio have died as a result of the heat wave during the past few days. The heat caused death of eight yesterday. Even thunderstorms under existing conditions will not bring cooler weather according to the weather bureau.

NEW BUILDINGS

Stribling & Lum, Columbus architects, have an order to make plans and specifications for an addition to Trinity Lutheran Church, Circleville, which, when completed, will have double its present capacity.

The firm has also completed plans for a brick and tile roofed bungalow for Robert L. Brehmer of the Ford and Fordson Sales and Service, which will be constructed on his lot in North Court street.

Habits of Biblical Times.

As no eating utensils were used at table in Biblical times, washing hands before and after meals was extremely desirable. Because of the dust and the heat of the climate, washing of the feet on entering a house was an act of respect to the host and of refreshment to the traveler. It was an especial act of respect and honor when the act was performed by the master of the house.

HITLESS PILOT IS NOW LUMBER BARON

Fielder Jones Conducts a
Flourishing Concern at Portland, Oregon.

Fielder Jones, one-time manager of the Chicago White Sox, is a former major leaguer who has made good in the business world after his baseball days ended.

Jones quit the game to enter the lumber business in Portland, Ore. And he is making a success of his work, as great a success as he did as a baseball manager. The present generation of fans do not remember him, but the older element recall Jones when he led the White Sox to a pennant in 1906 and later a world's championship over the Chicago Cubs.

That season the White Sox were known as the "hitters." They did not have a .300 hitter on the club, but Nick Altrock, Ed Walsh, "Doc" White, three great pitchers, stopped the other fellows from making runs while the Sox made their few hits count for enough to win.

Jones was a great believer in mixed baseball. The Sox attack was mixed up continually. When the rival club was set for the hit and run, the Sox bunted their way around or resorted to stealing bases. Few better baserunning teams ever appeared in the professional ranks.

One of the favorite Sox stunts was to wait out a pitcher. They would let him pitch his hardest for seven innings, sometimes with one or two hits off him, then bunch two or three hits with a base on balls and a sacrifice hit or two for enough runs to win.

The rivals made an error, the Sox made the most of it. Few teams were ever more alert for a slip on the part of the opposition. It was nothing unusual for them to get a man to second base on a wild throw. They would sacrifice him to third and either squeeze-play him along or else come through with a hit when it was needed. A base on balls or a hit batsman always resulted in their favor.

With a run or two, behind classy pitching, the Sox went along with little to worry about. They had a great fielding club and Jones, the manager, was a genius in directing the defense as well as the offense and knew how to handle pitchers.

BASEBALL NOTES

In his 20 years in the major leagues Ty Cobb has played in 2,004 games.

One or the other of these Barnes boys from Kansas is either winning or losing every day.

Pitcher Charles Schwartz of Pittsburgh has been given his unconditional release.

New Orleans has released Pitcher Lee Bolt to Charlotte of the South Atlantic league.

For the first time in ten years, the Cleveland Indians are without a spitball pitcher this season.

It's fortunate the sport scribble's story isn't literally true. Imagine a pitcher actually blowing up.

This is the end of the baseball season when the league teams get even with colleges in the publicity race.

Bob Fiske, University of Idaho pitcher, was farmed out by the Cleveland Indians to Decatur, Three I league.

Captain Carroll, the peerless pitcher of Holy Cross nine, is expected to lead one of the strongest teams in the history of the Worcester college.

Walter E. (Gus) Lindberg, captain and star left-handed pitcher of the Washington and Lee team, has been signed by the New York Giants.

The former Grand Duke Boris, if he fails to become czar of what is left of all the Russias, might get about the same effect by signing up as a baseball umpire over here.

In the early days of baseball as played in New England the rules gave the victory to the club first scoring 100 runs, and this often required two or more days to settle the question of superiority.

Has anyone now alive ever seen or heard of a fan getting up on his feet during a close game and announcing: "Let us now give three rousing cheers for the umpire in recognition of his good work lately?"

Honus Wagner, former Pittsburgh star, is a candidate for sheriff of Alleghany county, Pa. Unless Honus' legs have changed materially in the last 10 years a fugitive could get through them in an emergency.

Charley Robertson, right-hander of the White Sox, has not been showing any ill effects from the operation performed last year on his pitching arm for removal of a chipped bone. In fact, he promises to be star for Eddie Collins.

Bucky Harris and Clark Griffith got busy with Lee Fohl and when their session was completed, Joe Harris, former Indian, was ordered to don a Washington uniform while Pitcher Paul Zahniser and Outfielder Carlyle were sentenced to the Red Sox.

AMUSEMENTS

Monta Bell, Harry Rapf's directorial discovery, has hit his third successful film in "The Snob" the Metro-Goldwyn picture which opened last night at the Met theater for an engagement.

Bell in this picturization of Helen R. Martin's popular novel, has gone far from the usual film plot and treatment. His direction of this play ranks with his first sensational success, "Broadway After Dark."

The story is that of a handsome, personable young snob an instructor in a private academy and a favorite lecturer at women's clubs.

The central character is admirably played by John Gilbert, as the young instructor. The "snob" anxious to advance himself by any means, makes ardent love to the daughter of the town's wealthiest man, also he is engaged to a country school teacher.

He becomes the teacher's husband in a death bed marriage, and she, contrary to the doctor's prediction, recovers. The "snob's" treatment of her, his infidelity, and his attempts to release himself from the marriage in order to marry the wealthy woman, his fawning on those of greater wealth and position and his arrogance of those below him form the basis of the story.

The school teacher leaves him when she discovers his unfaithfulness and he, learning that she is really a wealthy woman, begs her to come back.

The character of snob is developed by many subtle touches under Bell's direction, and the story becomes tremendously entertaining in the telling.

Norma Shearer, who has been making rapid strides on the screen in the last two years, does another good piece of work as the school teacher. Conrad Nagel can always be counted on for a good performance. In this he plays the teacher's friend. Payllis Haver as the rich girl, Hedda Hopper, Aileen Manning, Margaret Seddon, Jack Curtis and others of the cast, support the principals to excellent advantage.

"The Snob" was adapted and directed by Monta Bell and was presented by Louis B. Mayer.

"I'm going to resign my office and let the darn postmasterin' slide!" said the official at the crossroads. "I've got plenty of d—n reason for it, too! One is that the emulsions of the office is too puny for the responsibilities, and another is that the fleas are too plenty. HIGH STREET IMPROVEMENT BELOW ESTIMATE

Property Owners Will Get a
Rebate on Assessments
Made Against Them.

Council met in regular session Wednesday evening, June 3, with President John C. Goeller presiding and all members present. Minutes of the last session were read and approved.

Mr. Baker stated that he would be ready to make a report at the next meeting as regard to the placing of obstructions in Hargus creek as he had had a talk with Mr. Rader, one of the county commissioners and the matter would be given their consideration within a short time.

Mr. Kline, as chairman of the committee on department of public safety asked for further time in regard to placing ladders on the fire trucks which was granted.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported fines, licenses and fees collected during the month of May in the sum of $429.10, and on motion of Mr. Landenberger this report was received and placed on file.

Service Director Schneider reported in the matter of paving West High street, that since the completion of this improvement it is found that the estimated cost exceeds the actual cost of the same, so he would therefore request council to pass an ordinance reducing the amount to be assessed against the abutting property owners for their share of this improvement in the sum of $834.58. On motion of Mr. Leist this was seconded and the request of the director of public service was carried.

An ordinance vacating that part of Hill alley in Lawrence Ebert's Cedar Hill addition to the city of Circleville, Ohio, between Edison avenue and Ebert alley, was introduced and read for the first time. Mr. Baker offered a motion which was seconded that the rules be suspended which carried and the ordinance was passed.

An ordinance to amend ordinance No. 511 which was passed by council November 5, 1924, whereby reducing the amount of the special assessments so made and levied for the improvement of West High street, between Western avenue and Court street to conform to and not to exceed the property owner's share of the actual cost of said improvement and to provide for the payment of the same, was introduced and read for the first time. Mr. Leist offered a motion which was seconded that the rules be suspended which carried; a vote was then taken and the ordinance was passed.

The R. P. Enderlin Coal company requested council to grant them permission to extend their switch across Mound street. President Goeller referred this request to the committee on railroads.

Second Moving Mountain Fills Colorado Highway

Denver, Colo.—The antics of Meeker's moving mountain in Rio Blanca county of western Colorado has led to the revelation that the state has a rival "runaway" peak in the foothills near Golden, according to Charles W. Henderson, mineral geographer of the United States geological survey. Golden is 15 miles west of Denver.

The condition is a common one, Henderson said. He reported that the Golden foothill has been marching steadily eastward for several years, interfering both with a highway and a branch line of the Denver Tramway company. Every few weeks, according to Henderson, crews of workmen are required to shovel off tons of dirt from both the highway and the railroad.

Meantime, the progress of Meeker's "moving mountain" continued uninterrupted. It slipped steadily along almost perceptibly, and in two days moved 100 yards. The slope of the peak is steadily "rolling down" to a less steep inclination, as the tremors on the mountain side shake gravel from the top. The mountain was 2,000 feet high.

His Lucky Day.

On a number of occasions nuggets were found in California by men who were not looking for them. A man sitting on a boulder at Pilot Hill, El Dorado county, was idly chipping it with a small hammer when his eye caught the glint of gold. The boulder yielded $8,000.

Small Water Creature Is Oddity of Nature

The little creature called the lancelet is slender and pointed at both ends and not very easy to see, since it is almost transparent and is only from an inch and a half to two and a half inches in length.

It lives in shallow water and likes to stick its head end into the sand. Into which it burrows with great rapidity. It remains thus for a long time with its tail sticking out. When on the surface of the water it lies on its side.

While it can neither see nor hear, there is reason for believing that it possesses the sense of smell and taste. Its eggs are laid about sunset and the larvae hatch out early the next morning.

The lancelet has no head. Moreover, it has neither legs nor pairs of fins. It has a mouth, however, placed at one end, which, therefore, may be called the head end of the body.

It has a stomach, a very simple form of liver and another simple organ which takes the place of a heart, since it is capable of contracting and thus forcing the blood, which is quite colorless, forward to the area of the gills, where it is purified.—Review of Reviews.

Lower Creatures' Odd Forms of Locomotion

In an address before the Wagner Free Institute of Science at Philadelphia Prof. Samuel Schumucker declared that the euglena is the simplest known form of animal life. In the lower forms of life, which are found in quiet waters, it is impossible to distinguish between animals and plants. Locomotion among the lower animals must be without legs or wings, says Professor Schumucker. These come only when life has developed into higher forms. "The simplest animals," he says, "are little drops of jelly, with a whiplash whose lashes drive them through the water by jerks. When they get thousands of little lashes instead, the motion becomes steady. This plan is kept for the inside movements in higher animals, and we clear air from the little rooms of our lungs by such motions." Respecting the locomotion of worms Professor Schumucker said: "Worms have come to have muscles whose contraction moves them, while bristles keep them from slipping backward."—Pathfinder.

Original of "Mother Goose"

Very little is known about the origin of the Mother Goose rhymes. The name "Mother Goose" is supposed to have had its origin in French folklore. Queen Goosefoot, mother of Charlemagne, was regarded as the special patron of children and her festival is still celebrated. Though the name originated in France the rhymes are English. New rhymes have been added to the collection from time to time, most of them being taken from English folklore. There is nothing to the story that the original Mother Goose was a Mrs. Goose who lived in Boston. As early as 1628 Charles Perrault published a book in England entitled the "Tales of Mother Goose." Many of the rhymes were probably old then.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Invented in a Dream

A "dream invention," making possible moving picture shows in broad daylight, is claimed by a young book-binder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city.

The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen, but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper, which radiate from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiments and is already patented.

The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

Oscar Wilde Sarcastic

An American publisher once wrote to Oscar Wilde and ordered a "story of 100,000 words," for which he offered to pay a specific price. The idea of having his wares measured as if by a yard-stick offended the poet's sensitive soul. A few days later he wrote back to New York: "Dear Sir: I received your charming letter, and have spent two or three days in delightful contemplation. I should like to write the story, but I do not see how I can do so. Unfortunately, there are not 100,000 words in the English language."

Red Cross Organization

The American Red Cross was organized in 1881, one of the most active founders being Clara Barton, who had served as a volunteer nurse in the Civil war and under the Red Cross flag in the Franco-Prussian conflict. She became the first president of the American Red Cross. It was Miss Barton's idea that relief should be provided also for the victims of earthquake, pestilence, or other calamity. Both the American body and the International committee soon adopted this extension of scope.

Theoretical Line

The 180th meridian in the Pacific ocean was selected as the international date line largely for the purpose of convenience. It is theoretically the opposite half of the circle of the meridian of Greenwich, which by common consent of the navigators of the world is the earth's prime or first meridian and is used as the common standard for reckoning time and measuring longitude.

CHRISTY BROS. BIG CIRCUS IS COMING NEXT

Spectacular Performance at
Mason's Field, Wednesday
June 10.

The mere announcement that Christy Brothers big five ring wild animal show is coming to Circleville Wednesday, June 10, is a guarantee that something new is on the tapis.

This big giant trained animal show has struck a solar plexus blow to the rest of shows of this kind. Never in the history of trained animal shows has such a varied collection of wild animals, marvelously educated, and trained horses, ponies and other performing domestic animals been brought together combined in one big, gigantic organization that offers an entertainment surpassed by none.

Announcement is made that for the first time a sextet of wild, romping elk have succumbed to the patience of their trainer and they perform feats never before attempted. They form pyramids, do marches and their drill with military maneuvers is a revelation in animal training. This is said to be the only troupe of elk that has ever been educated to do anything. As a rule they are wild and according to their trainer, nothing but kindness is responsible for this wonderful presentation of animal training.

There are so many marvelous and thrilling features, so much to interest and please that Christy Brothers this year have surpassed all their previous efforts. The wonderful biblical spectacle which is enlarged and beautified will again be seen this year. It is called "Noah and the Ark," and over five hundred people and hundreds of animals take part in this elaborate production. Daniel is cast into the lions' den, the "Rock of Ages" and the Holy City afford much opportunity to give the public an educational offering that is not only beautiful, but is instructive and of interest to all ages.

The street parade every morning at 11 o'clock is a joyful event. Open cages galore, clowns, music and pretty horses and women have an important place in line and every animal cage is open so that everybody can see the biggest collection of wild beasts ever seen.

Hundredth Anniversary of
Founding of Akron.

Akron, June 3.—Elaborate preparations are being made here to fittingly commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city, which has grown during the century from a small frontier trading post in the Western Reserve to one of the most important cities in the country and the acknowledged rubber metropolis of the world with a population of over 200,000.

The Centennial celebration will officially begin Sunday, July 19, which has been set aside as Church Day, with special services in all places of worship, and will last four days, ending Thursday, July 23, Homecoming and Reunion Day.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Howard went to Washington C. H., today where they will be present at a double birthday celebration which was held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Willard Story. The double event was the birthday anniversaries of Mr. Howard and his granddaughter, Clara Story.

Button, Button, Button, Who has the button? We have the molds and the machine to make the buttons, all we lack is the material. Bring in the material and we will make all the buttons you want, any style.

The Troubles of Mary

By CLAUDE WETMORE

(Copyright.)

LAST night Mary came to me. It seems an age since then. She came as she always had come, in childhood and in young womanhood, because she was in trouble.

Mary in her happier moods had sought others, and finally, when she had herself to give, it was John to whom she yielded. That was twenty years ago, and although we have since lived in the same city we did not meet until last night. Then she came with the greatest sorrow of her life on her lips—her son must restore $10,000 or be charged with a felony. John, recovering from an operation, could not be told of his boy's crime.

And I promised, even as I had promised to mend her skate strap in days when we were schoolmates.

After she had gone I looked over my books, but the illusion was quickly dispelled. My ledger showed that perhaps double the amount needed was owing me, but these debts covered the practice of a decade, and many accounts were outlawed; others I knew to be uncollectible, and a number were owed by persons who were away for the summer.

As I put the ledger one side my glance fell upon my day book, a little work which I had copyrighted and sold to other members of my profession.

On each page were plates, the drawings so arranged that a patient's case could be described by markings. Opening this book at random I happened on the page which described the first case for the following day—two molars to be filled for David Eastman, president of the First National bank.

It would have been unnatural for me to have slept after that; yet my hand was as steady as it ever had been in the morning, and a few minutes after the banker had left my chair I confronted him at his desk and asked for a loan of $10,000.

He spoke of collateral and the discount committee.

I had known that he would do so, but I had thought it right to give myself a chance; and then I gave myself another chance by telling him it would be impossible to wait the committee's action; moreover, I had no collateral, beyond bills receivable; and I must have this money at once, to save a friend from the penitentiary.

What! compound felony! He was justly indignant.

Then I talked rapidly, in a low tone, but I had thought it right to give myself a chance; and then I gave myself another chance by telling him it would be impossible to wait the committee's action; moreover, I had no collateral, beyond bills receivable; and I must have this money at once, to save a friend from the penitentiary.

I went with him to the office and extracted a molar, then I heard him direct his chauffeur: "To police headquarters": the natural thing for him to do.

After indorsing a life insurance policy so that David Eastman would be the beneficiary, I visited Mary and gave her what I had promised. She kissed me. It was the only kiss she had given me since the days of early childhood, and I don't believe John would have begrudged me this one.

It is a warm evening and the waters of the river are cool and tempting. But before I go I shall tell you what I whispered in the banker's ear:

"No instrument has been invented that will extract two teeth at the same time, but if you will lend me the sum named and come to my office immediately there will be no danger. Less than an hour ago I sealed two grains of cyanide of potassium in one of your molars and bound the filling to the other with a ligature."

Emerald in Old Times Known as Royal Gem

The emerald, the stone for the month of May, has figured prominently in history; and a flawless emerald is said to be the rarest of all gems, for "the better the color the more faulty the stone." The color varies from a grass green to a greenish white, but the choicest emerald is dark green and has a velvety appearance.

Emeralds are found in the Ural and Altai mountains and in North Carolina. In the sixteenth century the Spaniards took home chests full of these stones, and in 1529 Cortez gave his bride five wonderful emeralds which were afterward lost at sea.

Pliny tells that the emerald was "so refreshing to the eyes that gem cutters often gazed upon its soft green luster to revive their tired sight," and Benvenuto Cellini notes that an emerald was worth four or five times the price of a diamond. During Cleopatra's reign it was a royal gem. When Pope Adrian IV gave the lordship of Ireland to Henry II of England, he sent an emerald ring to him as a symbol of authority over the "Emerald Isle."

There is a popular superstition that it is bad luck for the wearer to have the stone fall from its setting. This perhaps originated from the tradition that at the coronation of George III a large emerald fell from the crown—and George III had anything but good luck in the Revolutionary war.—Kansas City Star.

Woman's Reasoning

Mr. Quizzer—But, my dear, if I buy a car I won't have enough money left to pay for my life insurance.

His Wife—But if you don't get the car you'll not be so likely to need the life insurance right away, so you can spare the money for the car.

To Pole by Airship

Fridtjof Nansen, the famous Arctic explorer, is returning to the North pole country after nearly thirty years spent in other work. He has announced that he is to head a German expedition which will make a long flight across the polar regions in a specially constructed dirigible of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, or something like twice the size of the Los Angeles. A crew of fifty men will be carried and the flight from the Murmansk coast, north of the White sea, to Alaska and back is expected to occupy four weeks. The principal objectives of the voyage will be scientific. Photographs to become bases for maps of the Arctic regions will be taken, soundings made in the ocean and other data assembled. It is hoped that the expedition will be able to start in 1927.

Reason & Snuff

Little John, age four, always said the unexpected. One day he was playing ball with his handkerchief. Repeatedly he threw it at Auntie who was trying to read. Hoping to regain peace, Auntie seized the handkerchief and placed it in her book. Immediately John began to tease for it.

"Do you want it very badly, John?" Auntie asked, and there was an affirmative nod.

"How badly do you want it?" Just what Auntie expected her small nephew to answer is unknown, but her surprise was evident when with puckered lips and wrinkled brow, John burst out:

"W-e-l-l, I want to blow my nose."

Pretty Idea of Death

The Salvation Army workers are generally very devout and have a sincere faith. The majority of them have a beautiful conception of death. They rarely ever speak of one of their members as being dead. With them "he has been promoted to glory."—Houston Post.

Cynical Idea

"Social butterflies" is a misnomer. Seeing how women go through clothes, "moths" would be more appropriate.—Louisville Herald.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Producing and Marketing

Usually demand more of a business man's time and thought than do his financial problems, but when such problems do arise the need for prompt and satisfactory solution is always urgent.

Many business men find it advantageous to bring such problems to officers of The First National Bank, which by virtue of its FEDERAL RESERVE MEMBERSHIP, commands the broadest source of information and is enabled to supply a scope and quality of service otherwise unobtainable.

Lesson for June 7
PETER'S BROADENING VISION
LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons.—Acts 10:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Strange Sight Which Peter Saw.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Peter Went to Caesarea.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter's Broadening Vision.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Intended for All Men.
Through the conversion of Cornelius, the "middle wall of partition" was broken down (Eph. 2:14).
1. Cornelius (10:1-2).
1. His Official Position (v. 1).
He was a Roman officer over a company of 100 soldiers.
2. His Character (v. 2).
(1) A devout, pious man.
(2) He was a praying man.
(3) He was charitable.
(4) He was respected by his family.
The Lord chose Cornelius for the transition of the gospel to the Gentiles because of his character and position.
II. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-33).
In order to bring this about:
1. Two Visions Were Given.
(1) The vision of Cornelius (v. 3-8).
While engaged in prayer, an angel of God appeared to him as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.
(2) The vision of Peter (v. 9-16).
He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven. This vessel let down from heaven and taken back indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.
2. A Messenger Sent From Cornelius (vv. 17-22).
Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter, and bade him go, nothing doubting. Thus we see that both had been prepared for each other by God.
3. The Meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).
(1) Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23).
He had the good judgment to know that on a matter of so great importance, he must have witnesses.
(2) Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24).
He called together his kinsmen and friends.
(3) Cornelius about to worship Peter (v. 25-26).
Peter repudiated his act and protested that he was but a man alongside of Cornelius.
(4) The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33).
Peter explained to him how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudice, and asked that Cornelius state the purpose of his having sent for him. Cornelius explains how God had appeared unto him and instructed him to send for Peter.
III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).
1. The Introduction (vv. 34-35).
He showed that God is no respecter of persons, but that in every nation those who fear God and work righteousness are accepted of Him.
2. His Discourse (vv. 36-43).
In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus showing that by means of His baptism and anointing with the Holy Spirit, He was qualified for His work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ:
(1) In His life (vv. 36-39).
He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with Him (v. 38).
(2) In His death (v. 39).
The just suffered for the unjust that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh (1 Pet. 3:18).
(3) In His resurrection (vv. 40-41).
God raised Him up the third day showing openly that Christ was His Son (Rom. 1:4), and that His sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25).
IV. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (vv. 44-48).
As the gospel was entering upon its widest embrace, the Spirit came in new power.
V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).
Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story in such a way that his narrative took the form of logical argument, and showed how that God had set His seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

They Make No Nest

Beekeepers who followed the recent advice of Director of Agriculture, Chas. V. Truax, in supplying additional stores to feed their colonies will find no serious reduction in their bee population because of the recent cold snap. This sudden drop in temperature injured many honey plants, and as a result, many colonies that were low in stores suffered considerably. The Ohio Department of Agriculture advises beekeepers to continue feeding for a few days more. Present indications point toward the start of the honey flow within one week in southern Ohio, northern Ohio being one week later. After the start of the honey flow, no precautions will be necessary except the prevention of swarming.

State Director of Agriculture, Chas. V. Truax, announces that the Statistical Review of Agriculture for 1924 may now be had on application. The annual publication of statistics of Ohio's County and Independent Fairs is also nearing completion. Compilation of the entries for the early closing events at the Ohio State Fair this year shows a larger entry list than heretofore in a majority of the races. Harness racing is scheduled for the first five days of this year's exposition which will be held from August 31 to September 5, inclusive.

BOY STICKS TO SWITCHBOARD IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Firemen Find the Boy on Floor at Post After Sav- ing Patients.

Englewood, N. J.—Fifty patients were carried safely from a blazing hospital recently while a substitute of fire boy enacted the role of hero in true movie style.

The boy is fifteen-year-old John Maris, who was sitting at the hospital switchboard when flames shot out of the X-ray room. A nurse told him to stick by his plugs as long as he could so that all wards might be notified of the fire. John is a stickler.

Half an hour later when the patients, most of them surgical cases and helpless, had been removed from the building, and all the volunteer helpers had been withdrawn, a fireman took a last look, just on the chance that some one had been overlooked.

Kicks When Rescued.

Sure enough, on the floor of the office lay a form, almost obscured by the smoke. At the height of a man's head the smoke was thick enough to suffocate one who breathed it. The fireman immediately put his rescue training in use, grabbed the recumbent one's heels and yanked him toward safety.

"Lemme go!" bawled John, "Lemme go. I gotta tend the switchboard and I'm just lying on the floor to keep out of the smoke."

The fireman explained that the fire was over so far as John was concerned and dragged him out.

Only the wooden portion of the hospital was burned. A mother with a day-old babe was one of the patients removed. A club next door was turned over to house the homeless sick ones for the time being.

Englewood is discussing a medal or something for John.

Creeps Through Fire Bed in Locomotive Furnace

Syracuse, N. Y.—Horace Harris, forty, went to sleep about two o'clock in the morning in the firebox of a laid-up locomotive at the Solway yards of the New York Central railroad.

His stint—he is on the railroad payroll as a boiler inspector—was done for the night. He was tired. It was bitter cold outside, and he figured the firebox provided a comfortable place to snatch a few winks before quitting time.

At three o'clock in the morning he was sound asleep. A fireman got on the locomotive, placed oil-soaked waste and other kindling in the firebox and applied a torch. Harris awoke to find himself cut off by a wall of fire. He scrambled through the flames over six feet of burning kindling. Once outside he fainted, and the firemen and other railroad workers beat out the flames enveloping him.

He is in a serious condition in Good Shepherd hospital.

Aged Man Falls Into Bath Tub; Is Drowned

Chicago.—While preparing to take his Sunday morning bath, Carl Holmes, eighty-three years old, fell on his face into the water and was drowned. Holmes lives alone in a rented room at 1218 Melrose street. Town Hall police were called. A few minutes after they had gone to the Melrose street address they were called to 623 Buckingham place, where James Kuchuris, forty-eight years old, had dropped dead of heart disease.

Kissed Too Much

Chicago.—"Cruelty of too much love" won for Mrs. Tessie Menze Fritz a divorce from Leo Fritz, an official of the Commonwealth Edison company, signed by Judge Sabath in Superior court.

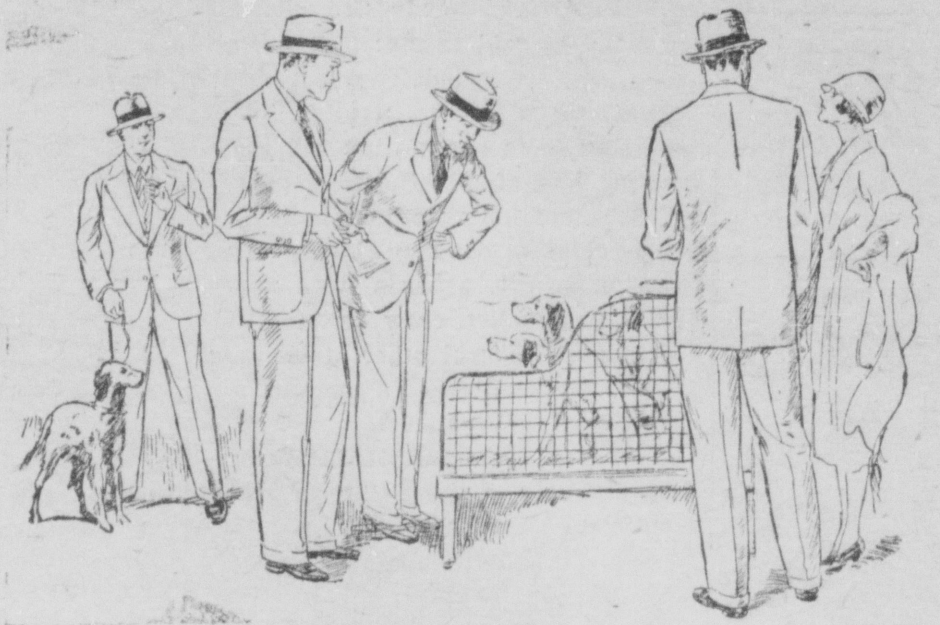

"He kissed me till my lips bled and hugged me till my ribs cracked," she said. "I had to go to California to get my health back."

Likes Metals

Shellsburg, Iowa.—Margaret Freeman, five, returned home recently quite well after the surgeons at Iowa City extracted a collection of one brass button, one salve box lid, and a salt shaker top from her stomach.

KEEPING WELL

OVERCOMING MISFORTUNE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

MISFORTUNE, which crushes some, stimulates others to greater effort. Shakespeare makes Cassius say, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not with our stars, but with ourselves."

The newspapers recently told of a tragic occurrence in one of our great cities. A prosperous baker, who had invested his savings in city real estate, died several years ago, leaving three children, all grown. The daughter was normal, but the two sons had been blind since early childhood. The daughter carried on the business and took care of her two blind brothers. The three lived much to themselves, the men never going out of the house without the sister to guide them.

Recently, the neighbors noticed that the house was closed and apparently deserted. After waiting a week, the police broke in to find the sister dead on the floor, apparently from heart disease, and the two brothers dead from starvation. With money in the bank and valuable real estate in their possession, they died for lack of food because they were totally dependent on their sister and had never learned to care for themselves.

The same papers contained an account of a young man of twenty-four, also blind from childhood, who had passed the state bar examination and graduated from law school with high honors.

One man conquered his affliction. The other men were conquered by it. Blind men have won success and reputation in many lines. Prescott, the historian, was blind during the greater part of his life. Senator Gore of Oklahoma has been blind for years. One of the leading physicians of Chicago lost his eyesight in boyhood, yet he went through college and medical school, graduated with honors, and is today an authority on heart disease, recognized as such all over the country. These men did not succeed because they were blind, but in spite of it.

One man loses his sight and becomes a beggar. Another meets the same misfortune, overcomes it, and becomes a successful man.

A boy born without arms, who learned to write with his toes, recently took a prize as a penman. A girl born without arms learned to write, sew, comb her hair, and dress herself with her toes. She graduated this year from Vassar.

Are you handicapped in any way? Don't give up to misfortune. Learn to overcome it. Others have done it and so can you.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS AT ANNAPOLIS TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF THE NAVAL ACADEMY

The First Essential of Peace and Security Is An Adequate Defense Which Should Be Broadly Extended and Borne By All Our People.

Reduction of the nation's standing military forces to a minimum is predicated upon attention to military affairs by the average citizen, President Coolidge declared at Annapolis Wednesday before the graduating class of the naval academy.

While appointing the new officers as ambassadors of peace and citizenship, the president reminded them that the first essential of peace and security is an adequate defense, which "should be broadly extended and borne by all our people."

"We do not believe in or wish to bear the expense to maintain large standing military forces," he said. "The very genius of a republic would be threatened by that policy. But while military science has advanced to such a degree that it is necessary constantly to maintain a considerable body of trained experts in that profession, the true spirit of American institutions requires that each citizen should be potentially a soldier, ready to take his place in the ranks in time of peril, either in the field or in the necessary productive activity."

"It is exactly because we wish to keep our standing forces small that the average citizen must give some attention to other government affairs, in order that he may express a deliberate and informed judgment at the ballot box."

The president reiterated that America's aim was "a policy of peace thru reason rather than force," and declared that in its dealings with the peoples of this and other nations, the navy must remember that the "dominant traits of mankind are truth and justice and rightness and that the appeal must ultimately prevail."

"The ultimately I believe peace will prevail," he continued, "I have too much knowledge of the history of mankind and too much experience with the traits of human nature to dare to assert that we shall never again be engaged in war. It is known of all the world that we have no present or traditional enmities, that we covet no territory, harbor no imperialistic designs and are not arming ourselves with the expectation of attacking or being attacked. And so far as we can look into the future, so far as we can gauge the power and temper of other peoples, there never was a time when it was less likely that any other nation or combination of nations would or could make any attack on us."

"As one who is responsible not only for our national defense, but likewise our friendly relations with other peoples and our title to the good opinion of the world, I feel that the occasion will very seldom arise, and I know it does not now exist, when those connected with our navy are justified either directly or by inference in asserting that other specified powers are arming against us, and by arousing national suspicion and hatred attempting to cause us to arm against them."

"The suggestion that any other people are harboring a hostile intent toward us is a very serious charge to make. We would not relish having our honorable motives and peaceful intentions questioned; others can not relish having any of us question theirs. We should not forget that in the world over the general attitude and one of the strongest attributes of all peoples is a desire to do right."

As in instrument of peace, Mr. Coolidge gave assurance that the navy

would draw adequate support from the federal treasury and he gave support also to voluntary organizations which attempted to advance the welfare of the navy by keeping the public informed "of its true aims and purposes." A strong military establishment alone, he said, would not prevent anyone from ever attempting to molest the nation. "I know of no nation in history that has ever been able to attain that position," he said, "I see no reason to expect that we could be the exception. Altho I believe thoroly in adequate military preparations what I am trying to argue is that they are not sufficient unto themselves."

"If we are to promote peace on earth we must have a great deal more than the power of the sword. We must call into action the spiritual and moral forces of mankind."

HITLER-LUDWIG CEMETERY CHAPEL

Contract Let To T. M. Barnes of Circleville.

The Hitler-Ludwig cemetery association let the contract for the construction of the Nelson Hitler Memorial Chapel at the cemetery in Pickaway township to Contractor T. M. Barnes of Circleville.

The chapel will be constructed of brick with hard-wood finish, dimensions 50x38 feet, will be built in the northwest corner of the grounds and will have a seating capacity for one hundred. Stribling & Lum, Columbus, made the plans, the style of architecture is old Colonial.

A bronze tablet bearing the following: "Memorial to Nelson Hitler" 1925, will be placed on the Chapel.

BLACK EYES ON BEACH

Bathing girls with black eyes are many on the beaches in the vicinity of Los Angeles and Hollywood and the men have nothing to do with it. Burnt cork has been used for years by ball players to keep the sun's glare from the eyes, and it's practical for the beaches as the fashion proves. Photograph is of Clara Horton, film star, whose makeup box is not complete without the cork.

Cuyrus, O., June 3—State Senator James R. Hopley has married Mrs. Pearl Gertrude Sutton, of Findlay, it became known today. Hopley is a Republican and has served three terms in the Ohio senate. He was brought into the public eye during the last legislative session by sponsoring a resolution designed to oust "red" professors from state colleges and universities. The proposal was shelved.

Tanks Show What They Can Do

A demonstration of modern tank tactics, with Capt. C. A. Osborne, commanding the first division tank company, in charge, was held at Miller field, Staten Island. The demonstration was to prove the usefulness of tanks against land mines, phosphorus grenades and air bombs. This remarkable photograph was taken at the very moment that a bomb exploded.

CROP OF PEAS DECIMATED BY HOT WEATHER

Report From Over the State Shows That Pea Crop is Fifty Per Cent Short.

Columbus, O., June 4 (UP).—The pea crop in Ohio this year will not be more than 50 per cent of normal according to the latest estimates received by the Ohio Cannery association. This is due to the frost a couple weeks ago and the present lack of moisture. It is reported that the rainfall is from four to six inches below normal. Among the principal pea producing counties in Ohio are Mercer, Logan, Champaign, Ross, Pickaway and a yette.

The outlook for tomatoes also is very discouraging, cannery report. The growers have had but little success in obtaining plants to take the place of those killed by the frosts. It is believed that if new plants can be obtained and set out by June 15, a fair crop can be produced, but it would be subject to the dangers of frost in the early fall. It is believed that the price of both peas and tomatoes will be high this year.

HONORING

The Girls of the Class of 1925, C. H. S.

The Business and Professional Women's Club have issued invitations to a dinner in honor of the girls of the class of 1925 C. H. S., at St. Philip's Parish House, on Wednesday evening, June 10th, at 5:30 o'clock.

The club flatters itself upon its success in securing as speaker for this occasion, Judge Florence Allen, of Cleveland, who will bring a message to the girls and deliver it in a way that should make a lasting impression upon the minds of these younger folks.

BIG FIRE LOSS.

Mechanicburg, O., June 4.—Damage of between $25,000 and $30,000 was caused by the blaze here last night which swept the business district, it was estimated today. The fire started in a trash pile and ate its way thru a warehouse owned by F. P. Boggs, hardware dealer, a garage, three barns and a number of outlying buildings.

DAHL-CAMPBELL EXCURSIONISTS GO TO CHICAGO

Many from Pickaway county are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Monday of next week when they will start their annual vacation as the guests of The Dahl-Campbell company for a very enjoyable lake trip to Chicago and return, arriving home Saturday night, June 13.

The party of around 1,000 guests will go by special trains to Windsor, Canada, where, late Monday afternoon they will board the giant lake steamship, "Neronic" for an 1800 mile cruise to Chicago and return, spending two days in Chicago, where sightseeing trips will be made thruout the city.

W. M. Campbell, president of The Midland Grocery company, will have personal charge of the outing party and the plans made for entertainment while on the outing are most elaborate.

While most of the retailers and others in the party made reservations months ago, a few who are booking late also are being given comfortable quarters aboard the big boat.

Last year Pickaway countians were with the party on a trip to Atlantic City.

A convention feature aboard the boat promises to be of much value to retailers who make up the large party of vacationists. Pickaway county residents who are members of the party will join one of the specials at Columbus and Washington, C. H.

The outing this year is said to be equal and in some respects superior to any of the previous outings.

Mrs. Willis Olney and Miss Nellie Rife spent the day in Columbus.

EIGHT LIVES SNUFFED OUT CRAZED FATHER MURDERS

His Mother, Brother-in-Law Sister and Their Five Children—Believe Slay-er Was a Victim of the Heat, He Tried to Take His Own Life.

Crazed by the heat and financial reverses Floyd Russell 42, of Hamilton, today shot and killed eight relatives. He then turned the gun on himself sending a bullet thru his chest. Physicians say he will recover.

The murder orgy took place at Russell's home. His victims were his own mother, his sister and brother-in-law and their five children ranging in age from four months to ten years.

"The mortgage was due. I couldn't meet it. I wanted to go and take them all with me so they wouldn't worry," Russell said at the jail. "It was so hot I couldn't think."

When police arrived at the house in response to calls sent in by neighbors they found Russell weaving about the living room.

"Wait, I want to shoot my picture off the wall," he told police.

The bodies of Russell's victims were strewn thruout the house. Dorothy Lowell, 8, was the only member of the family to escape with her life. She fled to the house of a neighbor at the first shot.

The location of the bodies indicated the family had fled before Russell's wrath. The shooting started at about 5:30 a. m. Mrs. Russell, killed as she slept, apparently was the first victim. Russell then ran thru the other rooms of the house firing two pistols. The report of the first shot awakened the Dorothy and she fled into the yard screaming.

At least fifty shots had been fired before police arrived. The bodies of some of the little children were literally riddled with bullets. Robert, 8, was shot five times thru the head and body.

According to the story of the shooting as pieced together by police Russell worked his way thru the house almost methodically. The first bullet which killed his mother as she slept awakened the entire house. The three months' old baby was frightened and cried. The other children fled, trying to hide. The crying of the infant annoyed Russell. He went to the cradle and placed a pistol against the baby's head firing three times.

Then a sound attracted his attention. He whirled around in time to see Robert 3, trying to creep from the room unnoticed. Five shots ended his flight abruptly.

Paul Louis, 3, had run to his grandmother. Five shots pierced his tiny body as he pulled at her hand attempting to awaken her.

Then, dashing into an adjoining room Russell found his brother sitting erect in bed. The position of the body indicated this. The mad man pumped ten shots into him. Two other bullets were for the slayer's sister-in-law. Neither was given a chance to get out of bed.

There were three girls left. Russell reloaded his weapons and crept down stairs. Two of the girls, Julia and Grace, were struggling to open the kitchen door. It stuck. As the girls cowered against the door screaming Russell shot them both between the eyes and then emptied the pistols into their bodies.

After that the slayer sited little Dorothy running across the lawn toward a neighbor's house. As he fired at her Dorothy fell, but she had only fainted, believing his bullet had struck its mark, however, Russell turned back into the house. As police arrived, battering down the door, Russell turned a pistol on himself.

"Well, I didn't do such a good job on myself," he remarked looking dazed at his chest wound.

THE ANNUAL STATE BANKERS' ASSOCEATION

Columbus, O., June 4 (UP).—Co-operative marketing and international relations were the foremost topics to be discussed at the second session of the Ohio Bankers' association annual convention in Columbus today.

A golf tournament was scheduled for this afternoon.

B. G. Huntington, Columbus, president, told the assembly in his opening address that the association had reached an unusual strength within the last year. Out of a total of 1310 banks in the state only 46 failed during the year to pay their dues to the association, he said.

During the year there were two burglaries, six hold-ups and one successful attempt at a hold-up of Ohio banks, Huntington said. There were 23 men implicated and 22 of them have been arrested of which nineteen were convicted, one was killed and the case of one still is pending.

Toledo—Willys-Overland directors declared a quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on preferred stock at their meeting today. The dividend is payable on July 1, to stockholders as of January 20.

JEWELER SAVES $100,000 IN GEMS BY FOOT WORK

Defies Revolvers and Beats Heels Against Door Until Aid Comes.

New York.—The frantic tattoo which Abraham Podolsky beat with head and feet against the front door of his jewelry store at 74 Forsyth street frightened away two holdup men who had entered the place with drawn revolvers a few minutes before, intent on looting his safe of more than $100,000 of diamonds.

Podolsky's terrified face framed in the glass panel of the door and the robbers fled. One of the pair leaped to the running board of a passing taxicab and at the point of his revolver forced the driver to take him to Chrystie and Canal streets. The other ran north on Forsyth street to Grand street and lost himself among the Sunday promenaders.

Driver Returns to Scene.

Harry Bender of 1536 St. John's place was the driver of the taxicab. As soon as the bandit jumped from the cab he drove back to Podolsky's store with the two passengers he had in the cab. Then the party, including Louis Stein of 1679 Fifth street,

Yelling for the Police

Brooklyn, a customer, who was in the store at the time, went to the Clinton street station and reported to Detectives Whalen and Cavanaugh.

Podolsky said he was alone in the store when a tall, dark youth entered and asked to see some diamond rings, ranging in price from $200 to $250. Something in the youth's manner made Podolsky suspicious. Before going to the big safe at the rear, which stood open, he went to the front door and locked it.

Customer Arrives in Time.

Then he brought out some rings, but while the pseudo customer examined them Stein appeared at the locked door and Podolsky went to let him in.

Another youth crowded in on Stein's heels, and as soon as he was in both he and the first youth drew revolvers and ordered the jeweler and Stein into a rear room. Stein prepared to obey, but Podolsky, shouting that he would die rather than let the robbers make off with his goods, ran to the door, beat his head against it and kicked it, yelling for the police.

The men took fright and fled.

Mother Wants Two Sons Confined in Jail for Life

Philadelphia.—A seventy-year-old mother appeared in a police station here with the request that the magistrate sentence her two sons to jail, "even for life," if necessary, to "just keep them away from me."

The sons, the aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Friel, said, would not work and made themselves a nuisance about her boarding house. They had been arrested 12 times for intoxication and disorderly conduct, the police said.

"When I wouldn't give them money to buy drinks," Mrs. Friel declared, "they threatened to kill me. I'm through with them. I disown them here and now, and I don't care where you send them, or how long you give them. I don't want ever to see them again, not even when I'm dying."

The sons, Daniel, forty, and James, thirty-eight, were sentenced to three months in the county jail.

May Keep Ring

San Francisco.—An engagement ring is a gift and not a trust, and if the fair recipient retains it she is not guilty of embezzlement, it was ruled here by a police judge. Louis H. Peterson asked for the arrest of his former fiancée, Miss Dorothy Howard, on a charge of embezzlement, asserting she had retained a diamond ring he had given her when Miss Howard promised to become his bride. He said they subsequently abandoned their plans and she refused to return the ring.

Drowns in Tub

Hammond, Ind.—The twenty-months-old son of Mrs. Ernest Parkas was drowned recently when it fell in the bathtub during the absence of the mother, who had gone to a near-by grocery store. Mrs. Parkas had left the child in the house alone, and it climbed into the tub of water.

E. F. ANDERSON MONUMENTAL WORKS
Circleville, Ohio

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

CORN FIELDS ISAdvice of the Extension
Specialists Say it is to Late
to Plant Corn.

Shall I rip up that corn field and plant it over, or will it be better to let it grow and take my chances on what I get?

This is the question that is being feverishly asked by farmers where the recent freeze did severe damage to corn and farm crops extension specialists at Ohio State university are now prepared to say this: If you are reasonably sure that 75 per cent of the sprouts are still alive let them grow by all means.

In explaining the department's stand on this decision Wallace E. Hanger, one of the specialists, says there are two important reasons why corn should not be planted over at this time.

"In the first place," says Mr. Hanger, "good seed corn was scarce before the first plaintiff and it is only reasonable to suppose that there is even less now. Telegrams from Indiana requesting seed corn indicate that sections farther west were also hard hit by the freeze and that they are also thinking of planting many fields over again."

"Sections of Ohio which suffered most are in the north and west. This is also the section of the shortest growing season and if corn is now replanted the chances are that it will not reach maturity before killing frosts this fall."

"It cannot be doubted that corn received a serious setback throughout the state and that in the northwest some fields are almost a total loss."

Forsaria, June 4—It's an ill wind, etc. The breeze came floating past Joe Mangette, shoe store clerk, and lo! it was laden with $10 bills. He began picking them out of the air when a woman rushed up and claimed ownership. The real owner, however, followed shortly and Mangette and she had to chase the first woman to recover some of the bills.

Cincinnati—Under the new ordinance approved by the committee of council, street care fare will be 8 1/3 cents. If tickets are bought, or 9 cents cash. It was asserted the measure would have sufficient backing to pass over an anticipated veto by Mayor George P. Carroll.

Cleveland, June 4—Sixteen persons in Ohio have died as a result of the heat wave during the past few days. The heat caused death of eight yesterday. Even thunderstorms under existing conditions will not bring cooler weather according to the weather bureau.

NEW BUILDINGS

Stribling & Lum, Columbus architects, have an order to make plans and specifications for an addition to Trinity Lutheran Church, Circleville, which, when completed, will have double its present capacity.

The firm has also completed plans for a brick and tile roofed bungalow for Robert L. Brehmer of the Ford and Fordson Sales and Service, which will be constructed on his lot in North Court street.

Habits of Biblical Times.

As no eating utensils were used at table in Biblical times, washing hands before and after meals, was extremely desirable. Because of the dust and the heat of the climate, washing of the feet on entering a house was an act of respect to the host and of refreshment to the traveler. It was an especial act of respect and honor when the act was performed by the master of the house.

HITLESS PILOT IS
NOW LUMBER BARONFielder Jones Conducts a
Flourishing Concern at Portland, Oregon.

Fielder Jones, one-time manager of the Chicago White Sox, is a former major leaguer who has made good in the business world after his baseball days ended.

Jones quit the game to enter the lumber business in Portland, Ore. And he is making a success of his work, as great a success as he did as a baseball manager. The present generation of fans do not remember him, but the older element recall Jones when he led the White Sox to a pennant in 1906 and later a world's championship over the Chicago Cubs.

That season the White Sox were known as the "hitleless wonders." They did not have a .300 hitter on the club, but Nick Altrock, Ed Walsh, "Doc" White, three great pitchers, stopped the other fellows from making runs while the Sox made their few hits count for enough to win.

Jones was a great believer in inside baseball. The Sox attack was mixed up continually. When the rival club was set for the hit and run, the Sox bunted their way around or resorted to stealing bases. Few better baserunning teams ever appeared in the professional ranks.

One of the favorite Sox stunts was to wait out a pitcher. They would let him pitch his hardest for seven innings, sometimes with one or two hits off him, then bunch two or three hits with a base on balls and a sacrifice hit or two for enough runs to win.

If the rivals made an error, the Sox made the most of it. Few teams were ever more alert for a slip on the part of the opposition. It was nothing unusual for them to get a man to second base on a wild throw. They would sacrifice him to third and either squeeze-play him along or else come through with a hit when it was needed. A base on balls or a hit batsman always resulted in their favor.

With a run or two, behind classy pitching, the Sox went along with little to worry about. They had a great fielding club and Jones, the manager, was a genius in directing the defense as well as the offense and knew how to handle pitchers.

BASEBALL
NOTES

In his 20 years in the major leagues Ty Cobb has played in 2,904 games.

One or the other of these Barnes boys from Kansas is either winning or losing every day.

Pitcher Charles Schwartz of Pittsburgh has been given his unconditional release.

New Orleans has released Pitcher Lee Bolt to Charlotte of the South Atlantic league.

For the first time in ten years, the Cleveland Indians are without a spitball pitcher this season.

It's fortunate the sport scribe's story isn't literally true. Imagine a pitcher actually blowing up.

This is the end of the baseball season when the league teams get even with colleges in the publicity race.

Bob Fiske, University of Idaho pitcher, was farmed out by the Cleveland Indians to Decatur, Three 1 league.

Captain Carroll, the peerless pitcher of Holy Cross nine, is expected to lead one of the strongest teams in the history of the Worcester college.

Walter E. (Gus) Lindberg, captain and star left-handed pitcher of the Washington and Lee team, has been signed by the New York Giants.

The former Grand Duke Boris, if he fails to become czar of what is left of all the Russias, might get about the same effect by signing up as a baseball umpire over here.

In the early days of baseball as played in New England the rules gave the victory to the club first scoring 100 runs, and this often required two or more days to settle the question of superiority.

Has anyone now alive ever seen or heard of a fan getting up on his feet during a close game and announcing, "Let us now give three rousing cheers for the umpire in recognition of his good work lately?"

Honus Wagner, former Pittsburgh star, is a candidate for sheriff of Allegheny county, Pa. Unless Honus' legs have changed materially in the last 10 years a fugitive could get through them in an emergency.

Charley Robertson, right-hander of the White Sox, has not been showing any ill effects from the operation performed last year on his pitching arm for removal of a chipped bone. In fact, he promises to be star for Eddie Collins.

Bucky Harris and Clark Griffith got busy with Lee Fohl and when their session was completed, Joe Harris, former Indian, was ordered to don a Washington uniform while Pitcher Paul Zahniser and Outfielder Carlyle were sentenced to the Red Sox.

AMUSEMENTS

Monta Bell, Harry Rapf's directorial discovery, has hit his third successful film in "The Snob" the Metro-Goldwyn picture which opened last night at the Met theater for an engagement.

Bell in this picturization of Helen R. Martin's popular novel, has gone far from the usual film plot and treatment. His direction of this play ranks with his first sensational success, "Broadway After Dark."

The story is that of a handsome, personable young snob an instructor in a private academy and a favorite lecturer at women's clubs.

The central character is admirably played by John Gilbert, as the young instructor. The "snob" anxious to advance himself by any means, makes ardent love to the daughter of the town's wealthiest man, altho he is engaged to a country school teacher.

He becomes the teacher's husband in a death bed marriage, and she, contrary to the doctor's prediction, recovers. The "snob's" treatment of her, his infidelity, and his attempts to release himself from the marriage in order to marry the wealthy woman, his fawning on those of greater wealth and position and his arrogance of those below him form the basis of the story.

The school teacher leaves him when she discovers his unfaithfulness, and he, learning that she is really a wealthy woman, begs her to come back.

The character of snob is developed by many subtle touches under Bell's direction, and the story becomes tremendously entertaining in the telling.

Norma Shearer, who has been making rapid strides on the screen in the last two years, does another good piece of work as the school teacher. Conrad Nagel can always be counted on for a good performance. In this he plays the teacher's friend. Pavitts Haver as the rich girl, Hedda Hopper, Aileen Manning, Margaret Seddon, Jack Curtis and others of the cast, support the principals to excellent advantage.

"The Snob" was adapted and directed by Monta Bell and was presented by Louis B. Mayer.

His Determination

"I'm going to resign my office and let the darn postmasterin' slide!" said the official at the crossroads. "I've got plenty of d—n reason for it, too! One is that the emulsions of the office is too puny for the responsibilities, and another is that the fleas are too plenty. A feller that takes the only daily paper that comes here from the city has started shooting at me b'cuzz he wants his darn paper before I'm through reading it. A passel of skunks has took to rendezvoozing under the building, and the atmospheric disturbance is so thick you can cut it with the flat side of a barrel stave. Tuther day an unreasonable cuss who wanted his mail came right in through the side of the office with an ax, just b'cuzz I'd gone off fishing. And I sorter hear it whispered that the K. K. K. is figgering on calling on me on gener'l principles, as it were, and I've decided that it is time for me to step down and out."—Kansas City Star.

HIGH STREET IMPROVEMENT BELOW ESTIMATE

Property Owners Will Get a
Rebate on Assessments
Made Against Them.

Council met in regular session Wednesday evening, June 3, with President John C. Goeller presiding and all members present. Minutes of the last session were read and approved.

Mr. Baker stated that he would be ready to make a report at the next meeting in regard to the placing of obstructions in Hargus creek as he had had a talk with Mr. Rader, one of the county commissioners and the matter would be given their consideration within a short time.

Mr. Kline, as chairman of the committee on department of public safety asked for further time in regard to placing ladders on the fire trucks which was granted.

Mayor Fitzpatrick reported fines, licenses and fees collected during the month of May in the sum of $429.10, and on motion of Mr. Landenberger this report was received and placed on file.

Service Director Schneider reported in the matter of paving West High street, that since the completion of this improvement it is found that the estimated cost exceeds the actual cost of the same, so he would therefore request council to pass an ordinance reducing the amount to be assessed against the abutting property owners for their share of this improvement in the sum of $834.58. On motion of Mr. Leist this was seconded and the request of the director of public service was carried.

An ordinance vacating that part of Hill alley in Lawrence Ebert's Cedar Hill addition to the city of Circleville, Ohio, between Edison avenue and Ebert alley, was introduced and read for the first time. Mr. Baker offered a motion which was seconded that the rules be suspended which carried and the ordinance was passed.

An ordinance to amend ordinance No. 511 which was passed by council November 5, 1924, hereby reducing the amount of the special assessments so made and levied for the improvement of West High street, between Western avenue and Court street to conform to and not to exceed the property owner's share of the actual cost of said improvement and to provide for the payment of the same, was introduced and read for the first time. Mr. Leist offered a motion which was seconded that the rules be suspended which carried; a vote was then taken and the ordinance was passed.

The R. P. Enderlin Coal company requested council to grant them permission to extend their switch across Mound street. President Goeller referred this request to the committee on railroads.

Second Moving Mountain Fills Colorado Highway

Denver, Colo.—The antics of Meeker's moving mountain in Rio Blanca county of western Colorado has led to the revelation that the state has a rival "runaway" peak in the foothills near Golden, according to Charles W. Henderson, mineral geographer of the United States geological survey. Golden is 15 miles west of Denver.

The condition is a common one, Henderson said. He reported that the Golden foothill has been marching steadily eastward for several years, interfering both with a highway and a branch line of the Denver Tramway company. Every few weeks, according to Henderson, crews of workmen are required to shovel off tons of dirt from both the highway and the railroad.

Meantime, the progress of Meeker's "moving mountain" continued uninterrupted. It slipped steadily along almost perceptibly, and in two days moved 100 yards. The slope of the peak is steadily "rolling down" to a less steep inclination, as the tremors on the mountain side shake gravel from the top. The mountain was 2,000 feet high.

His Lucky Day.
On a number of occasions nuggets were found in California by men who were not looking for them. A man sitting on a boulder at Pilot Hill, El Dorado county, was idly chipping it with a small hammer when his eye caught the glint of gold. The boulder yielded $8,000.

Small Water Creature Is Oddity of Nature

The little creature called the lancelet is slender and pointed at both ends and not very easy to see, since it is almost transparent and is only from an inch and a half to two and a half inches in length.

It lives in shallow water and likes to stick its head end into the sand, into which it burrows with great rapidity. It remains thus for a long time with its tail sticking out. When on the surface of the water it lies on its side.

While it can neither see nor hear, there is reason for believing that it possesses the sense of smell and taste. Its eggs are laid about sunset and the larvae hatch out early the next morning.

The lancelet has no head. Moreover, it has neither legs nor pairs of fins. It has a mouth, however, placed at one end, which, therefore, may be called the head end of the body.

It has a stomach, a very simple form of liver and another simple organ which takes the place of a heart, since it is capable of contracting and thus forcing the blood, which is quite colorless, forward to the area of the gills, where it is purified.—Review of Reviews.

Lower Creatures' Odd Forms of Locomotion

In an address before the Wagner Free Institute of Science at Philadelphia Prof. Samuel Schumucker declared that the euglena is the simplest known form of animal life. In the lower forms of life, which are found in quiet waters, it is impossible to distinguish between animals and plants. Locomotion among the lower animals must be without legs or wings, says Professor Schumucker. These come only when life has developed into higher forms. "The simplest animals," he says, "are little drops of jelly, with a whiplash whose lashes drive them through the water by jerks. When they get thousands of little lashes instead, the motion becomes steady. This plan is kept for the inside movements in higher animals, and we clear air from the little rooms of our lungs by such motions." Respecting the locomotion of worms Professor Schumucker said: "Worms have come to have muscles whose contraction moves them, while bristles keep them from slipping backward."—Pathfinder.

Original of "Mother Goose"

Very little is known about the origin of the Mother Goose rhymes. The name "Mother Goose" is supposed to have had its origin in French folklore. Queen Goosefoot, mother of Charlemagne, was regarded as the special patron of children and her festival is still celebrated. Though the name originated in France the rhymes are English. New rhymes have been added to the collection from time to time, most of them being taken from English folklore. There is nothing to the story that the original Mother Goose was a Mrs. Goose who lived in Boston. As early as 1628 Charles Perrault published a book in England entitled the "Tales of Mother Goose." Many of the rhymes were probably old then.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Invented in a Dream

A "dream invention," making possible moving picture shows in broad daylight, is claimed by a young book-binder in Budapest, according to a dispatch from that city.

The inventor projects pictures not against a white screen, but against a rapidly rotating disk covered with strips of dark green and dark blue paper, which radiate from the center. The dispatch says the invention has been proved a complete success by experiments and is already patented.

The inventor says the idea came to him in a dream and he is unable to explain it.

Oscar Wilde Sarcastic

An American publisher once wrote to Oscar Wilde and ordered a "story of 100,000 words," for which he offered to pay a specific price. The idea of having his wares measured as if by a yardstick offended the poet's sensitive soul. A few days later he wrote back to New York: "Dear Sir: I received your charming letter, and have spent two or three days in delightful contemplation. I should like to write the story, but I do not see how I can do so. Unfortunately, there are not 100,000 words in the English language."

Red Cross Organization

The American Red Cross was organized in 1881, one of the most active founders being Clara Barton, who had served as a volunteer nurse in the Civil war and under the Red Cross flag in the Franco-Prussian conflict. She became the first president of the American Red Cross. It was Miss Barton's idea that relief should be provided also for the victims of earthquake, pestilence, or other calamity. Both the American body and the International committee soon adopted this extension of scope.

Theoretical Line

The 180th meridian in the Pacific ocean was selected as the international date line largely for the purpose of convenience. It is theoretically the opposite half of the circle of the meridian of Greenwich, which by common consent of the navigators of the world is the earth's prime or first meridian and is used as the common standard for reckoning time and measuring longitude.

CHRISTY BROS. BIG CIRCUS IS COMING NEXT

Spectacular Performance at
Mason's Field, Wednesday
June 10.

The mere announcement that Christy Brothers big five ring wild animal show is coming to Circleville Wednesday, June 10, is a guarantee that something new is on the tapis.

This big giant trained animal show has struck a solar plexus blow to the rest of shows of this kind. Never in the history of trained animal shows has such a varied collection of wild animals, marvelously educated, and trained horses, ponies and other performing domestic animals been brought together combined in one big, gigantic organization that offers an entertainment surpassed by none.

Announcement is made that for the first time a sextet of wild, romping elk have succumbed to the patience of their trainer and they perform feats never before attempted. They form pyramids, do marches and their drill with military maneuvers is a revelation in animal training. This is said to be the only troupe of elk that has ever been educated to do anything. As a rule they are wild and acceding to their trainer, nothing but kindness is responsible for this wonderful presentation of animal training.

There are so many marvelous and thrilling features, so much to interest and please that Christy Brothers this year have surpassed all their previous efforts. The wonderful biblical spectacle which is enlarged and beautified will again be seen this year. It is called "Noah and the Ark," and over five hundred people and hundreds of animals take part in this elaborate production. Daniel is cast into the lions' den, the "Rock of Ages" and the Holy City afford much opportunity to give the public an educational offering that is not only beautiful, but is instructive and of interest to all ages.

The street parade every morning at 11 o'clock is a joyful event. Open cages galore, clowns, music and pretty horses and women have an important place in line and every animal cage is open so that everybody can see the biggest collection of wild beasts ever seen.

ELABORATE PREPARATIONS

Being Made To Celebrate One
Hundredth Anniversary of
Founding of Akron.

Akron, June 3.—Elaborate preparations are being made here to fittingly commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city, which has grown during the century from a small frontier trading post in the Western Reserve to one of the most important cities in the country and the acknowledged rubber metropolis of the world with a population of over 200,000.

The Centennial celebration will officially begin Sunday, July 19, which has been set aside as Church Day, with special services in all places of worship, and will last four days, ending Thursday, July 23, Homecoming and Reunion Day.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The Troubles of Mary

By CLAUDE WETMORE

(Copyright.)

LAST night Mary came to me. It seems an age since then. She came as she always had come, in childhood and in young womanhood, because she was in trouble.

Mary in her happier moods had sought others, and finally, when she had herself to give, it was John to whom she yielded. That was twenty years ago, and although we have since lived in the same city we did not meet until last night. Then she came with the greatest sorrow of her life on her lips—her son must restore $10,000 or be charged with a felony. John, recovering from an operation, could not be told of his boy's crime.

And I promised, even as I had promised to mend her skate strap in days when we were schoolmates.

After she had gone I looked over my books, but the illusion was quickly dispelled. My ledger showed that perhaps double the amount needed was owing me, but these debits covered the practice of a decade, and many accounts were outlawed; others I knew to be uncollectible, and a number were owed by persons who were away for the summer.

As I put the ledger one side my glance fell upon my day book, a little work which I had copyrighted and sold to other members of my profession.

On each page were plates, the drawings so arranged that a patient's case could be described by markings. Opening this book at random I happened on the page which described the first case for the following day—two molars to be filled for David Eastman, president of the First National Bank.

It would have been unnatural for me to have slept after that; yet my hand was as steady as it ever had been in the morning, and a few minutes after the banker had left my chair I confronted him at his desk and asked for a loan of $10,000.

He spoke of collateral and the discount committee.

I had known that he would do so, but I had thought it right to give myself a chance; and then I gave myself another chance by telling him it would be impossible to wait the committee's action; moreover, I had no collateral, beyond bills receivable; and I must have this money at once, to save a friend from the penitentiary.

What! compound felony! He was justly indignant.

Then I talked rapidly, in a low tone. He paled and trembled like a wind-stirred leaf. For a moment I thought he would faint. But he steadied himself and fetched me the $10,000.

I went with him to the office and extracted a molar, then I heard him direct his chauffeur: "To police headquarters"; the natural thing for him to do.

After indorsing a life insurance policy so that David Eastman would be the beneficiary, I visited Mary and gave her what I had promised. She kissed me. It was the only kiss she had given me since the days of early childhood, and I don't believe John would have begrudged me this one.

It is a warm evening and the waters of the river are cool and tempting. But before I go I shall tell you what I whispered in the banker's ear:

"No instrument has been invented that will extract two teeth at the same time, but if you will lend me the sum named and come to my office immediately there will be no danger. Less than an hour ago I sealed two grains of cyanide of potassium in one of your molars and bound the filling to the other with a ligature."

Emerald in Old Times Known as Royal Gem

The emerald, the stone for the month of May, has figured prominently in history; and a flawless emerald is said to be the rarest of all gems, for "the better the color the more faulty the stone." The color varies from a grass green to a greenish white, but the choicest emerald is dark green and has a velvety appearance.

Emeralds are found in the Ural and Altai mountains and in North Carolina. In the sixteenth century the Spaniards took home chests full of these stones, and in 1529 Cortez gave his bride five wonderful emeralds which were afterward lost at sea.

Pliny tells that the emerald was "so refreshing to the eyes that gem cutters often gazed upon its soft green luster to revive their tired sight," and Benvenuto Cellini notes that an emerald was worth four or five times the price of a diamond. During Cleopatra's reign it was a royal gem. When Pope Adrian IV gave the lordship of Ireland to Henry II of England, he sent an emerald ring to him as a symbol of authority over the "Emerald Isle."

There is a popular superstition that it is bad luck for the wearer to have the stone fall from its setting. This perhaps originated from the tradition that at the coronation of George III a large emerald fell from the crown—and George III had anything but good luck in the Revolutionary war.—Kansas City Star.

Woman's Reasoning

Mr. Quilzer—But, my dear, if I buy a car I won't have enough money left to pay for my life insurance.

His Wife—But if you don't get the car you'll not be so likely to need the life insurance right away, so you can spare the money for the car.

To Pole by Airship

Fridtjof Nansen, the famous Arctic explorer, is returning to the North pole country after nearly thirty years spent in other work. He has announced that he is to head a German expedition which will make a long flight across the polar regions in a specially constructed dirigible of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, or something like twice the size of the Los Angeles. A crew of fifty men will be carried and the flight from the Murmansk coast, north of the White sea, to Alaska and back is expected to occupy four weeks. The principal objectives of the voyage will be scientific. Photographs to become bases for maps of the Arctic regions will be taken, soundings made in the ocean and other data assembled. It is hoped that the expedition will be able to start in 1927.

Reason a Snuff

Little John, age four, always said the unexpected. One day he was playing ball with his handkerchief. Repeatedly he threw it at Aunt who was trying to read. Hoping to regain peace, Aunt seized the handkerchief and placed it in her book. Immediately John began to tease for it.

"Do you want it very badly, John?" Aunt asked, and there was an affirmative nod.

"How badly do you want it?" Just what Aunt expected her small nephew to answer is unknown, but her surprise was evident when with puckered lips and wrinkled brow, John burst out:

"W-e-l-l, I want to blow my nose."

Pretty Idea of Death

The Salvation Army workers are generally very devout and have a sincere faith. The majority of them have a beautiful conception of death. They rarely ever speak of one of their members as being dead. With them "he has been promoted to glory."—Houston Post.

Cynical Idea

Producing and Marketing

Usually demand more of a business man's time and thought than do his financial problems, but when such problems do arise the need for prompt and satisfactory solution is always urgent.

Many business men find it advantageous to bring such problems to officers of The First National Bank, which by virtue of its FEDERAL RESERVE MEMBERSHIP, commands the broadest source of information and is enabled to supply a scope and quality of service otherwise unobtainable.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Intended for All Men.
Through the conversion of Cornelius, the "middle wall of partition" was broken down (Eph. 2:4).
I. Cornelius (10:1-2).
1. His Official Position (v. 1).
He was a Roman officer over a company of 100 soldiers.
2. His Character (v. 2).
(1) A devout, pious man.
(2) He was a praying man.
(3) He was charitable.
(4) He was respected by his family.
The Lord chose Cornelius for the transition of the gospel to the Gentiles because of his character and position.
II. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-33).
In order to bring this about:
1. Two Visions Were Given.
(1) The vision of Cornelius (v. 3-8).
While engaged in prayer, an angel of God announced that his prayer and alms had come before God as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.
(2) The vision of Peter (v. 9-16).
He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven. This vessel let down from heaven and taken back indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.
2. A Messenger Sent From Cornelius (vv. 17-22).
Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter, and bade him go, nothing doubting. Thus we see that both had been prepared for each other by God.
3. The Meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).
(1) Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23).
He had the good judgment to know that on a matter of so great importance, he must have witnesses.
(2) Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24).
He called together his kinsmen and friends.
(3) Cornelius about to worship Peter (v. 25-26).
Peter repudiated his act and protested that he was but a man alongside of Cornelius.
(4) The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33).
Peter explained to him how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudice, and asked that Cornelius state the purpose of his having sent for him. Cornelius explains how God had appeared unto him and instructed him to send for Peter.
III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).
1. The Introduction (vv. 34-35).
He showed that God is no respecter of persons, but that in every nation those who fear God and work righteousness are accepted of Him.
2. His Discourse (vv. 36-43).
In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus showing that by means of His baptism and anointing with the Holy Spirit, He was qualified for His work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ:
(1) In His life (vv. 36-39).
He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with Him (v. 38).
(2) In His death (v. 39).
The just suffered for the unjust that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh (1 Pet. 3:18).
(3) In His resurrection (vv. 40-41).
God raised Him up the third day showing openly that Christ was His Son (Rom. 1:4), and that His sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25).
IV. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (vv. 44-48).
As the gospel was entering upon its widest embrace, the Spirit came in new power.
V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).
Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story in such a way that his narrative took the form of logical argument, and showed how that God had set His seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

WEEKLY PRESS SERVICE

Beekeepers who followed the recent advice of Director of Agriculture, Chas. V. Truax, in supplying additional stores to feed their colonies will find no serious reduction in their bee population because of the recent cold snap. This sudden drop in temperature injured many honey plants, and as a result, many colonies that were low in stores suffered considerably. The Ohio Department of Agriculture advises beekeepers to continue feeding for a few days more. Present indications point toward the start of the honey flow within one week in southern Ohio, northern Ohio being one week later. After the start of the honey flow, no precautions will be necessary except the prevention of swarming.

State Director of Agriculture, Chas. V. Truax, announces that the Statistical Review of Agriculture for 1924 may now be had on application. The annual publication of statistics of Ohio's County and Independent Fairs is also nearing completion. Compilation of the entries for the early closing events at the Ohio State Fair this year shows a larger entry list than heretofore in a majority of the races. Harness racing is scheduled for the first five days of this year's exposition which will be held from August 31 to September 5, inclusive.

BOY STICKS TO SWITCHBOARD IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Firemen Find the Boy on Floor at Post After Sav- ing Patients.

Englewood, N. J.—Fifty patients were carried safely from a blazing hospital recently while a substitute office boy enacted the role of hero in true movie style.

The boy is fifteen-year-old John Maris, who was sitting at the hospital switchboard when flames shot out of the X-ray room. A nurse told him to stick by his plugs as long as he could, so that all wards might be notified of the fire. John is a stickler.

Half an hour later when the patients, most of them surgical cases and helpless, had been removed from the building, and all the volunteer helpers had been withdrawn, a fireman took a last look, just on the chance that some one had been overlooked.

Kicks When Rescued.

Sure enough, on the floor of the office lay a form, almost obscured by the smoke. At the height of a man's head the smoke was thick enough to suffocate one who breathed it. The fireman immediately put his rescue training in use, grabbed the recumbent one's heels and yanked him toward safety.

"Lemme go!" bawled John, "Lemme go. I gotta tend the switchboard and I'm just lying on the floor to keep out of the smoke."

The fireman explained that the fire was over so far as John was concerned and dragged him out.

Only the wooden portion of the hospital was burned. A mother with a day-old babe was one of the patients removed. A club next door was turned over to house the homeless sick ones for the time being.

Englewood is discussing a medal or something for John.

Creeps Through Fire Bed in Locomotive Furnace

Syracuse, N. Y.—Horace Harris, forty, went to sleep about two o'clock in the morning in the firebox of a laid-up locomotive at the Solway yards of the New York Central railroad.

His stint—he is on the railroad payroll as a boiler inspector—was done for the night. He was tired. It was bitter cold outside, and he figured the firebox provided a comfortable place to snatch a few winks before quitting time.

At three o'clock in the morning he was sound asleep. A fireman got on the locomotive, placed oil-soaked waste and other kindling in the firebox and applied a torch. Harris awoke to find himself cut off by a wall of fire. He scrambled through the flames over six feet of burning kindling. Once outside he fainted, and the firemen and other railroad workers beat out the flames enveloping him.

He is in a serious condition in Good Shepherd hospital.

Aged Man Falls Into Bath Tub; Is Drowned

Chicago.—While preparing to take his Sunday morning bath, Carl Holmes, eighty-three years old, fell on his face into the water and was drowned. Holmes lives alone in a rented room at 1218 Melrose street. Town Hall police were called. A few minutes after they had gone to the Melrose street address they were called to 623 Buckingham place, where James Kuchuris, forty-eight years old, had dropped dead of heart disease.

Kissed Too Much

Chicago.—"Cruelty of too much love" won for Mrs. Tessie Menze Fritz a divorce from Leo Fritz, an official of the Commonwealth Edison company, signed by Judge Sabath in Superior court.

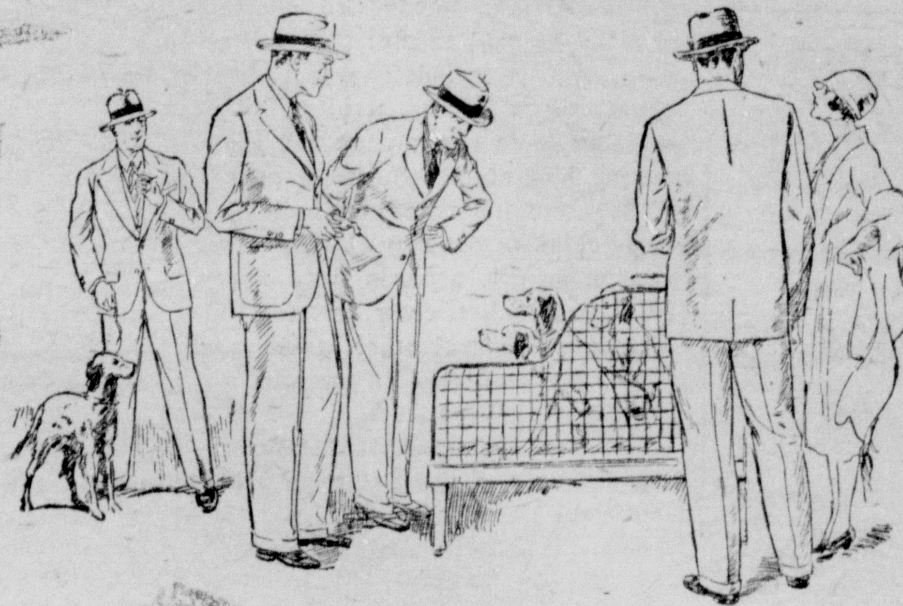

"He kissed me till my lips bled and hugged me till my ribs cracked," she said. "I had to go to California to get my health back."

Likes Metals

Shellsburg, Iowa.—Margaret Freeman, five, returned home recently quite well after the surgeons at Iowa City extracted a collection of one brass button, one salve box lid, and a salt shaker top from her stomach.

KEEPING WELL

OVERCOMING MISFORTUNE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

MISFORTUNE, which crushes some, stimulates others to greater effort. Shakespeare makes Cassius say, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not with our stars, but with ourselves."

The newspapers recently told of a tragic occurrence in one of our great cities. A prosperous baker, who had invested his savings in city real estate, died several years ago, leaving three children, all grown. The daughter was normal, but the two sons had been blind since early childhood. The daughter carried on the business and took care of her two blind brothers. The three lived much to themselves, the men never going out of the house without the sister to guide them.

Recently, the neighbors noticed that the house was closed and apparently deserted. After waiting a week, the police broke in to find the sister dead on the floor, apparently from heart disease, and the two brothers dead from starvation. With money in the bank and valuable real estate in their possession, they died for lack of food because they were totally dependent on their sister and had never learned to care for themselves.

The same papers contained an account of a young man of twenty-four, also blind from childhood, who had passed the state bar examination and graduated from law school with high honors.

One man conquered his affliction. The other men were conquered by it.

Blind men have won success and reputation in many lines. Prescott, the historian, was blind during the greater part of his life. Senator Gore of Oklahoma has been blind for years. One of the leading physicians of Chicago lost his eyesight in boyhood, yet he went through college and medical school, graduated with honors, and is today an authority on heart disease, recognized as such all over the country. These men did not succeed because they were blind, but in spite of it.

One man loses his sight and becomes a beggar. Another meets the same misfortune, overcomes it, and becomes a successful man.

A boy born without arms, who learned to write with his toes, recently took a prize as a penman. A girl born without arms learned to write, sew, comb her hair, and dress herself with her toes. She graduated this year from Vassar.

Are you handicapped in any way? Don't give up to misfortune. Learn to overcome it. Others have done it and so can you.
